

TABLE STAKES

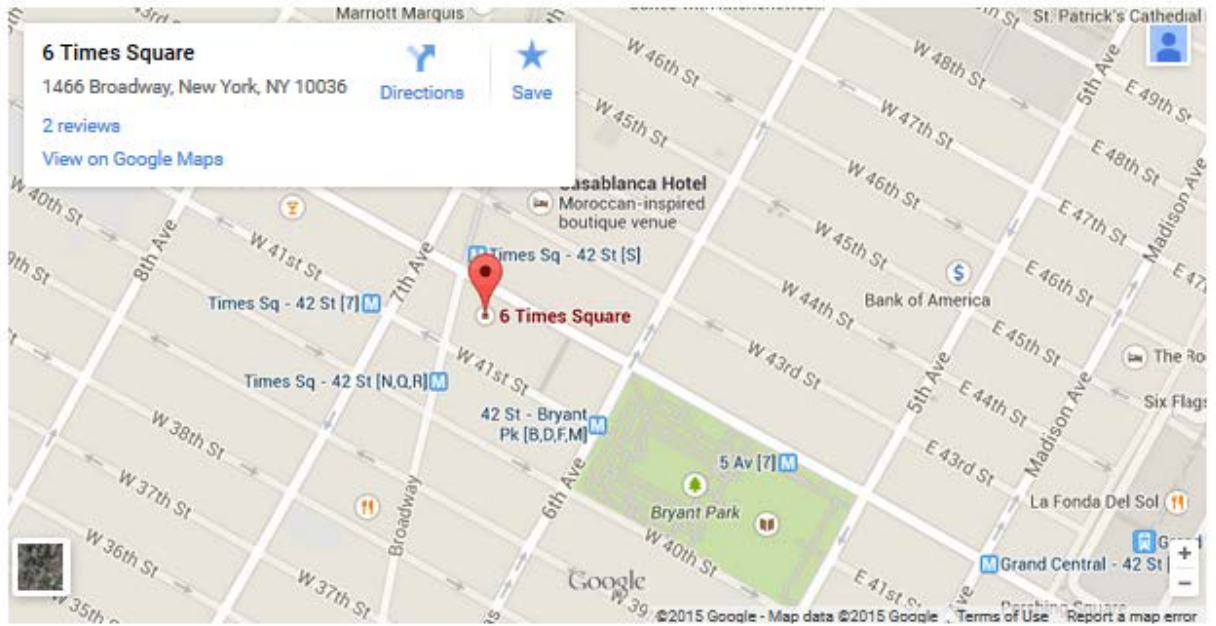

THE BEST OF NEW YORK FOOD AND DRINK
MARCH 2015

To keep tabs on every New York restaurant and bar opening is folly. But to keep tabs on the most worthy? Yeoman's work, and we're proud to do it. Thus we present Table Stakes, a monthly rundown of the five (or so) must-know spots that have swung wide their doors in the past thirty (or so). Bon appétit.

Charlie Palmer at The Knick
Times Square

A true power lunch should feature martinis. Preferably multiple martinis. And at powerhouse chef Charlie Palmer's sprawling new eatery on The Knickerbocker Hotel's fourth floor, they're dishing them out tableside via a roving cart. Pair them with an order of fluke ceviche, a couple Scottish quail eggs and their signature short rib burger and you're in business.
